- 2) Investing in entities that aim to implement infrastructure projects which add value to the entire portfolio of the Company;
- 3) Investing in entities that aim to implement infrastructure projects which provide opportunities to maximize the Company's financial returns through enhanced leverage or refinancing;
- 4) Investing in entities that aim to implement infrastructure projects which are expected to offer returns consistent with or greater than the associated risk of the underlying infrastructure asset; and
- 5) Making an intensive investment in entities that will enable the Company to exercise significant influence or control over key strategic, commercial and financial functions.

In addition to the asset types that the Company currently invests in, such as roads, bridges, tunnels, rails, ports, city gas, and digital (data center), the Company is contemplating on investing in a broader range of infrastructure assets defined under Article 2 Subparagraph 1 of the PPP Act.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the aforementioned investment strategy does not guarantee that the investment goals and performance targets suggested by the Company will be met.

(2) Risk Management

The Company manages its portfolio risks by way of diversifying its investments.

In relation to any acquisition and divestment of assets, or any refinancing transaction, the Company performs due diligence on the target and its financials. In order to assess the key assumptions and verify the key risk factors, the general work procedure of the Company is to analyze the risk factors from legal, finance, accounting, tax, regulations, traffic, insurance, environment, technology and operation perspectives with the respective experts.

The Company believes that it will continue to adequately find, evaluate and manage risk factors based on its expertise and experience in the infrastructure investment industry.

The Company is a closed-end collective investment vehicle, and its shares were listed on the Korea Exchange for provision of liquidity. Therefore, the Company's shares provide better liquidity and cashability than shares of other companies, but it is possible that cashability may be compromised as investors may be unable to sell their shares at the time they want, due to sluggish trading volume or otherwise.

B. Revenue Structure

The investment performance of the Company may vary depending on cash inflow in the form of interest income, dividend income, fee income and disposal gain generated by the infrastructure assets that the Company has invested in.

Major expenses of the Company are comprised of 1) interest expenses on its outstanding debts; and 2) fees and expenses to its service providers, including management fees to the asset management company. For detailed information on compensation to the service providers, please refer to Section 13 (Fees and Expenses) of Chapter 2 of this document.

10. Risk Factors

Accordingly, there is a risk of all or partial loss of the invested capital, and investors shall be fully responsible for any risks associated with potential losses of their investment principals. The Company, the asset manager of the Company, and sales agents are not responsible for any losses incurred as a result of investors' investments. Also, the Korea Deposit Insurance Corporation does not protect all or part of the investment principal pursuant to the Depositor Protection Act even if investors have purchased the fund from a bank subject to the protection of the bank deposits under the Depositor Protection Act.

Also, risk factors regarding the Company and the liquidity of the Company's shares are described in detail in B. Company Risks - (1) Risks Relating to Distribution Payout, (2) Risks Related to Uncertainty in Financing, and (3) Risks Relating to Debt.

The contents below set out the details of the risks that an investor must be aware of prior to making an investment in the Company but do not include all of the risks associated with investments made in the Company.

A. Business Risks

(1) Risks Relating to the Project Companies

Investors to the Company should be aware that the project companies' ability related to cash flow generation, repayment of debts, and payment of dividends may be influenced by factors beyond the control of the Company and this may affect the profitability of the Company. The book value of the invested assets in the project companies plus interest receivables as of 31 December 2024 is KRW 3.8 trillion in aggregate, of which senior loans, subordinated loans, equity securities and interest receivables respectively make up 0.4%, 53.8%, 21.5% and 24.3% (proportional to the book value of the total investments and receivable interest). The subordinated loans and equity securities which are subordinated in the repayment priority, take up a large portion of the Company's total investments. Therefore, investors should be aware that delay in repayment of the investments may have an adverse effect on the likelihood of the full collection of the invested assets within the operating periods of the project companies.

The project companies in which the Company has invested, have significant debts owed to the Company and other lenders. Whether each project company fulfills its liabilities and repays its debts is dependent entirely upon the cash flow generated by such project company.

The operating expenses and/or capital expenditure spent by the project companies for the operation, maintenance, and management of infrastructure and related facilities may exceed the forecast, and may have an adverse effect on the cash flow of the project companies which may lead to a lower rate of investment return of the Company.

Also, the project companies pay interests on subordinated loans or interests and loan principal on senior loans that have become due in accordance with the repayment schedule, before paying dividends. The project companies may reserve funds in a debt service account and there may be additional restrictions on the payment of subordinated loan principal and interests or dividend payout.

The interests on the floating senior loans payable by the project companies may increase if the market interest rate rises. This may decrease the principal and interests or dividends to be received by the Company. If the cash flow of the project companies is weakened on grounds beyond the control of the Company, or if the project companies fail to fulfill the conditions of financing agreements, they may be required to refinance all or part of the debt or raise additional capital. Also, if refinancing or additional funding cannot be obtained, the project companies may default. In turn, the relevant creditors may declare an event of default on the project companies and the value of the Company's investments in the project companies may also decrease.

As discussed above, the investors in the Company should be aware that the project companies' ability related to cash flow generation, repayment of debts, and payment of dividends may be influenced by factors beyond the control of the Company.

The following is the list of projects in which the Company has invested as of 31 December 2024:

The subordinated loans and equity securities which are subordinated in the repayment priority, take up a large portion of the Company's total investments. Therefore, the investors should be aware that delays in the repayment period may have an adverse effect on the collection of investments within the business operating period.

(2) Risk Associated with Influence in Decision Making within the Project Companies

The Company is investing in a total of 20 infrastructure projects. The Company has provided debt financing and invested in shares of the entities that develop and/or operate infrastructure businesses or corporate entities established with the purpose of investing in the entities that develop and/or operate infrastructure businesses. Therefore, the Company retains limited management control of such entities, and these entities may have objectives different from those of the Company. The fact that the Company is unable to exercise managerial control over these entities' business, strategy, and policy may adversely impact the Company's efforts to generate cash and pay distributions.

Further, there are other shareholders in some of the project companies in which the Company has invested, and such shareholders may have investment objectives different from those of the Company. Therefore, the Company may exercise control over certain matters, but the approval of the other shareholders or directors appointed by those shareholders may be required in other circumstances.

In relation to the above, the Company may not be able to exercise significant control over the business, dividend payouts, interest payments and other important decisions of the project companies. Investors should be aware of the above factors.

(3) Risks Relating to Interest Rate Increase (Project Companies)

Some of the project companies in which the Company has invested have floating interest rate senior loans. Under the terms of such senior loans, the project companies are required to pay the interest and principal of the senior loans prior to making dividend or subordinated debt interest payments. In a rising interest rate market, the project companies would be required to pay higher interest rates on the senior loans, which may reduce the amount payable to the Company as dividends or interest on subordinated loans.

(4) Relating to the Operation of the Project Companies

1) Risk relating to the Operation of the Container Port Project Company

In April 2019, BNCT Co., Ltd. ("BNCT"), the concessionaire of the Busan New Port Phase 2-3 Project ("BNP 2-3"), in which the Company invested, executed an agreement with the new lenders to make a partial repayment to existing lenders and to make new external borrowings in order to increase the capacity of the handling volume and improve its liquidity. Following the transaction, the principal amount of investment made by the Company in BNCT decreased from KRW 304.0 billion (subordinated loan I KRW 193.0 billion, subordinated loan II KRW 44.6 billion, equity securities KRW 66.4 billion) to KRW 259.4 billion (subordinated loan KRW 193 billion, equity securities KRW 66.4 billion), and by utilizing a part of the new external loans to purchase additional equipment, BNCT increased BNP 2-3's annual maximum capacity from 2.5 million TEUs to 3.0 million TEUs.

Consequently, as of 31 December 2024, the Company invests KRW 193 billion and 66.4 billion in subordinated loan and equity securities of BNCT, respectively, and accrued interest in connection with the subordinated loan amount to KRW 588.2 billion.

Investors should be aware that BNCT is an asset under a concession agreement which does not include the minimum revenue guarantee (“MRG”) and therefore, even if its operating performance deteriorates, BNCT would not receive any subsidy payment from the relevant government authority.

2) Risk relating to the Operation of Toll Road Project Companies

Out of a total of 14 toll road projects the Company has invested in, the concessionaries of five toll road projects are entitled to receive the government subsidy from the relevant government authority in accordance with the concession agreement. These project companies may be dependent on the government subsidy, but in most cases, they are mainly dependent on the income of toll fees of each road operated. Tolls and traffic volume, the underlying elements of the toll revenue are affected by overall Korean economy, inflation rate, oil price, size of population and other various facts. Investors should be aware of this.

3) Risk relating to the Operation of City Gas and Heat & Electricity Businesses

The three project companies, namely Haeyang Energy Co., Ltd., Seorabeol City Gas Co., Ltd. and CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd., in which the Company invested through Youngsan Clean Energy Ltd. (for Haeyang) and Bomun Clean Energy Ltd. (for the other two), are in city gas retail distribution business. The LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) distribution business in Korea is operated as follows: KOGAS imports and supplies LNG to local city gas retail distributors, and local distributors provide so supplied LNG to consumers through their own gas pipelines.

City gas retail distributors secure LNG, the main fuel for the city gas distribution, through a long-term supply and demand agreement with KOGAS. Currently, the fuel costs, operating expenses, and non-operating expenses of city gas retail distributors are added to the city gas retail price to be paid by end users according to the City Gas Distribution Costs Calculation Standards. However, if changes to the policies related to the addition of these costs are applied unfavorably for the city gas retail distributors in which the Company has invested directly and/or indirectly, this could adversely affect the Company's profitability.

If the city gas retail price or city gas demand in the area in which city gas retail distributors distribute city gas (the “Distribution Zone”) falls, it could have a negative impact on the profitability of those retail distributors. Given that the demand for city gas is subject to several external variables, including population growth, economic growth rate, temperature, and fuel competitiveness, the accurate forecast thereof is difficult. A decrease in the retail price or city gas demand in the Distribution Zone of the city gas retail distributors, in which the Company has invested directly or indirectly, may adversely affect the Company's profitability.

City gas retail distributors may generate surplus revenue with sales higher than the distribution volume due to the meter gain effect from the difference between the actual distribution volume and the measured sales volume of city gas. These measurement errors are caused by gas characteristics, technical errors, and the time difference between meter readings, which can lead to a decrease in the profits of the city gas retail distributors in which the Company has invested if these measurements are modified and consequently the yield drops due to the government’s policy or other reasons.

Meanwhile, in respect of the heat & electricity business of CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd., in which the Company has invested, reliance on top 4 clients (“Key Clients”) is high in terms of sales of steam for industrial use as they constitute approximately 85% of total steam sales in 2024. Thus, in the case where the Key Clients reduce their use of steam or their use of steam is decreased due to an incident such as a fire, there will be a substantial negative effect on the steam sales within the heat & electricity business.

4) Risk relating to the Operation of Data Center Project Company

Lastly, in relation to Hanam Data Center, in which the Company has invested through Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd. (“GDI”), GDI is mainly reliant on rents as the core source of income. That means, the presence of vacancy or decrease in rent may deteriorate profitability of GDI.

The tenant of Hanam Data Center under the rent agreement with LG CNS Co., Ltd. leases the Data Center in entirety for use of 99% of the target IT load of 25.44MW. The tenant enters into a use agreement with users of the Data Center whereby the users are to install, maintain and control server racks, servers, and server equipment at certain spaces of the Data Center, as provided therein, at the users’ costs. Considering, from the tenant’s perspective, that the Data Center is one of the main sources of income for the tenant and is an asset that contributes to its share in the relevant market, and from the users’ perspective, the potentially high likelihood that a large sum of CAPEX and relocation costs would be required for the relocation of servers and other machinery and equipment, neither the tenant nor the users would easily decide to leave the Data Center. However, the rent agreement may be renewed or extended upon some terms and conditions, such as rent price and agreed volume of use, unfavorable to the Company due to the decreased demand for the data center, increased supply of data centers in the Seoul Metropolitan Area or other factors prevailing at the time of renewal or extension that are unpredictable at present, and the profitability of Hanam Data Center business may decrease than expected. In addition, the rent agreement may be terminated early before expiry of the agreed term due to insolvency of the tenant or economic, social, or legal reason that is unpredictable. This would have adverse impact on the Company’s business performance and cashflow for a certain period of time.

1) Risk relating to the Operation of the Container Port Project Company

The Company has invested in BNCT, which operates and manages BNP 2-3, a container port in Busan. BNCT commenced its operation in January 2012 and the amount of investment made by the Company in BNCT is KRW 259.4 billion as of 31 December 2024, which is composed of the subordinated loan extended to the project company in the amount of KRW 193.0 billion and equity securities in the amount of KRW 66.4 billion.

In April 2019, in order to increase its capacity to handle growing container volume in the future and improve liquidity, BNCT entered into an agreement with new lenders to repay a part of existing loans and raise new external loans. As a result of this refinancing, the principal amount of investment made by the Company decreased from KRW 304.0 billion (subordinated loan I KRW 193.0 billion, subordinated loan II KRW 44.6 billion, equity securities KRW 66.4 billion) to KRW 259.4 billion (subordinated loan KRW 193 billion, equity securities KRW

① Volume Performance

BNCT has retained CMA CGM which is the parent company of BNCT's shareholder, Terminal Link, as the main customer. BNCT provides services by entering into terminal service agreement with each shipping company. Handling volumes classified as controlled service by CMA CGM under the Terminal Service Agreement between CMA CGM and BNCT are required to call at BNCT. This agreement is effective until BNCT's concession expires.

CMA CGM is a member of Ocean Alliance, a global shipping alliance officially established on 1 April 2017. Ocean Alliance currently consists of CMA CGM, APL, COSCO, Evergreen, and OOCL, and other shipping companies of Ocean Alliance which are not required to call at BNCT may also be prone to call at BNCT for cost reduction and convenience.

However, the shipping companies of Ocean Alliance, including CMA CGM, do not guarantee a specified container volume to BNCT, and therefore, if the container volume of CMA CGM and Ocean Alliance decreases in the future, it may have an adverse impact on the performance of BNCT.

Also, the shipping industry is affected by macroeconomics and global trade dynamics. Decreases in global container volume caused by economic recession or protective trade policies, or changes in the environment such as a decrease in the general export and trade volume in Korea, may have an adverse effect on the performance of BNCT.

BNCT's total handling volume for 2024 decreased by 1.6% compared to the same period of the previous year, recording 2.68 million TEUs. Revenue decreased by 4.4% to over the same period of the previous year to KRW 152.6 billion, and EBITDA decreased by 13.0% over the same period of the previous year to KRW 66.9 billion, recording EBITDA margin of 43.8%. The deteriorated performance during 2024 was due to business slowdown, fierce competition with ports at home and abroad, and increase in geopolitical risk, which have adverse impact on the handling volume and revenue structure.

② Revenue/TEU

The tariff of BNCT and Busan New Port may change in response to various factors such as economic conditions, supply and demand of containers in Busan New Port, and domestic or overseas competition.

In April 2017, tariffs for some services were adjusted due to the reorganization of shipping alliances, and the average revenue/TEU of BNCT (calculated by dividing the total revenue by the handling volume) recorded an annual growth of 1.8% over the past 11 years from 2013 to 2024. The average revenue/TEU may vary depending on various factors, including the fare adjustment rates, the volume mix (transshipment, import/export, etc.), container type, and additional income.

③ Subordinated Loans

As of 31 December 2024, the principal of the subordinated loans extended to BNCT is KRW 193.0 billion and the unpaid interest is KRW 588.2 billion, amounting to a total subordinated loan (including unpaid interest) of KRW 781.2 billion.

In April 2019, BNCT entered into an agreement with new lenders to repay a part of existing loans and raise new external loans. As a result of this refinancing, the Company received the principal of subordinated loan II (KRW 44.6 billion) and the entire amount of deferred interest (KRW 49.2 billion). Therefore, upon the conclusion of the refinancing, the principal of subordinated loans to BNCT by the Company decreased from KRW 237.6 billion (subordinated loan I KRW 193.0 billion, subordinated loan II KRW 44.6 billion) to KRW 193 billion.

On 27 September 2022, the board of directors of BNCT adopted a resolution approving a partial amendment of the terms of the subordinated loan agreement for the purpose of improving the management environment and operating activities of BNCT. And on 28 September 2022, BNCT and the Company, the lender of the subordinated loan of BNCT, upon mutual agreement, entered into an amended subordinated loan agreement. As a result, from 1 October 2022, the method of interest with respect to the interest applied to the loan principal and accrued interest shall change from compounded interest to simple interest, while no change is made in the interest rate (12 % per annum), interest payment intervals (quarterly), the size of the loan principal (KRW 193.0 billion), etc.

In addition, on 30 April 2024, in consideration of the rapidly changing business landscape, including continued slowdown in economy, increasing competition with domestic and overseas ports and rising geopolitical tensions, and its medium to long-term impact on the performance of BNCT and accordingly the Company, the Company and BNCT agreed to amend certain conditions of the subordinated loan of BNCT and signed the Amended and Restated Subordinated Loan Agreement on 30 April 2024. Such amendment becomes effective on 1 July 2024 and the summary of the Amendment is as follows:

Term	Before	Amended
Interest rate	12% p.a. fixed	Rate is set ¹ between 6 and 12% p.a. each quarter based on annual performance and liquidity of BNCT
Interest² payment order	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ① Accrued Interest ② Deferred Interest ③ Compounded Deferred Interest 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ① Compounded Deferred Interest ② Deferred Interest ③ Accrued Interest

(*) deployable cash at preceding year-end is calculated by subtracting [(i) amount required for servicing senior & mezzanine loans, subordinated loan principal repayment and capex expenditure during current year and (ii) working capital required during current year] from cash and cash equivalents other than various reserves at preceding year-end.

² Types of interest include, (i) interest newly accrued during quarterly interest accrual period ("Accrued Interest"), (ii) deferred interest that has been accumulating since 1 Oct 2022 ("Deferred Interest") and (iii) KRW 442.5bn of deferred interest that had been accumulated until 30 Sep 2022 ("Compounded Deferred Interest")

(*) Of these, Compounded Deferred Interest generates interest the same way as BNCT's subordinated loan principal.

BNCT is an asset with a concession agreement that does not have MRG and therefore, even if the sales fall due to poor performance and/or freeze or decrease in tariffs, BNCT would not receive any subsidy payment from the relevant government authority. Weakened sales may lead to low liquidity of BNCT and may increase the deferred interests on the subordinated loan (wholly owed to the Company). If this situation persists, losses may occur as the bad debt expenses could be recognized for the unpaid interests and the principal of the BNCT's Subordinated Loan and a loss in equity valuation may occur. Also, there is the possibility of the Company not receiving the outstanding principal of the subordinated loan and equity investment (KRW 66.4 billion) by the end of the concession period of BNCT.

2) Risk relating to the Operation of Toll Road Project Companies

Out of a total of 14 toll road businesses the Company has invested in, the concessionaries of five toll road projects (Baekyang Tunnel, Kwangju Second Beltway Section 1, Soojungsan Tunnel, Kwangju Second Beltway Section 3-1, Machang Bridge) are entitled to receive the government subsidy from the relevant government authority in accordance with the concession agreement. The subsidy includes the compensation for the shortfall of toll revenue subject to traffic volume (minimum revenue guarantee), investment cost compensation and toll-freeze compensation. The revenue of these project companies is dependent on the toll of the relevant roads apart from the income from the minimum revenue guarantee. In some cases, the income of these concessionaires is partially dependent on government subsidies provided in accordance with the concession agreement, but in most cases, it is mainly dependent on the income of toll fees of each road operated. Also, tolls are determined under the relevant concession agreement.

Pursuant to the concession agreement, the toll is determined by external factors such as the overall Korean economy, negative consumer perception of toll raise, inflation rate and traffic volume. Relevant government authorities may limit raises in toll fares or make requests to lower toll fares through restructuring or refinancing.

Traffic volume and toll revenue are affected by various factors including the following.

- Toll fare
- Oil price
- Vehicle price and vehicle maintenance costs
- Types of vehicles using toll roads (including bridges and tunnels)
- Population increase, increase in vehicle ownership, increase in licensed drivers
- Natural disasters such as flood, earthquake and forest fire
- Decline in traffic demand due to outbreak of diseases such as epidemic or pandemic
- Unfavorable weather conditions that negatively affect traffic volume, such as heavy snow, fog and rain
- Environmental regulations limiting the use of vehicles
- The quality and accessibility of toll roads compared to other competitive transportation means such as trains or other roads
- Limits on the number of vehicles efficiently using toll roads during particular periods
- Overall economic conditions

If the traffic volume in the project falls due to such factors, the Company's revenue to be generated from the project may fall, adversely affecting the Company's business and financial conditions.

The toll road business of the Company can be classified by whether there is a minimum revenue guarantee (or other guarantees provided by the relevant government authorities following restructuring as applicable, collectively referred to as "guarantee"), actual operating performance compared to the guarantee, and the period of guarantee compared to the concession period. The characteristics and risk factors of each classification are as follows.

• Project without Guarantee Provided by the Relevant Government Authority

- Currently, the Incheon Bridge, Seoul-Chuncheon Highway, Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway, Incheon International Airport Expressway, Woomyunsan Tunnel, Yongin-Seoul Expressway, Busan New Port 2nd Rear Road, Incheon-Gimpo Expressway and East Seoul Underground Expressway projects do not receive a revenue guarantee from their relevant government authorities.

After the project restructuring was completed in January 2016, the Woomyunsan Tunnel project no longer has the MRG provision. Instead, the revenue partitioning structure was introduced. Under the revenue partitioning structure, the agreed amount from the actual toll revenue is reserved upfront in the disposable income account in order to retrieve the investment principals invested by the Company and relevant interest income prior to other payments. Currently, the traffic performance is sufficient to meet the expected profit. However, in case the traffic performance deteriorates and the disposable income account balance becomes insufficient, the Company may not be able to retrieve a portion of the investment principals or interests.

The Incheon Bridge, Seoul-Chuncheon Highway, Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway, Incheon International Airport Expressway and Yongin-Seoul Expressway projects initially had MRG by the relevant government authority, but it ended in 2024, 2024, 2022, 2020 and 2019, respectively. There is no financial support from relevant government authorities related to sales or expenses for the Busan New Port 2nd Rear Road, Incheon-Gimpo Expressway, and East Seoul Underground Expressway projects.

• Project with Guarantee Provided by the Relevant Government Authority Which Currently Has Operation (toll) Performance Exceeding Guaranteed Level

- The Machang Bridge project has been provided with a guarantee from the relevant government authority but has operating performance exceeding the respective guarantee level (based on 2024 result). The project company is generating increased revenues based on the operating performance exceeding the guarantee level. However, as a decrease in operating performance may lead to an immediate reduction in the cash flow of the project company, the guarantee provided by the relevant government authorities does not guarantee the current estimated value of the investment in the project company.

• Project with Guarantee Provided by Relevant Government Authority, Triggering the Payment under Guarantee due to Operating Performance Short of Minimum Revenue Guarantee Level, for which Guarantee Expires During Concession Period

- There is no project with guarantees provided by the relevant government authority which has triggered the payments under the guarantees due to operating performance short of the minimum revenue guarantee level (based on 2024 results) but with the guarantee expiring during the concession period. If there exists such project, the guarantee provided by the relevant government authority acts as the downside protection on the revenue and cash flow of the project company, but if its operating performance does not improve significantly in the future, its revenue may fall considerably after the guarantee period expires. Expiration of the guarantee period may have an adverse effect on the Company's revenue and cash flow compared to the guarantee period.

• Project with Guarantee Provided by Relevant Government Authority, Triggering the Payment under Guarantee due to Operating Performance Short of Minimum Revenue Guarantee Level, for which Guarantee Covers Entire Concession Period

- The projects with guarantees provided by the relevant government authorities which have triggered payments under the guarantees due to operating performance short of the minimum revenue guarantee level (based on 2024 results), with the guarantee covering the entire concession period are the Baekyang Tunnel, Soojungsan Tunnel, Kwangju Second Beltway Section 1 and Kwangju Second Beltway Section 3-1 projects. The three project companies have operating performance short of their guarantee levels, and currently receive payments under the respective guarantees. Since the payments under the guarantees provided by the relevant government authorities cover the entire concession periods, decreases in operating performance (compared to other toll road project companies) may not affect the Company's revenue and cash flow to the extent the other toll road project companies may affect. However, in order to meet the estimated return on investment, these project companies must continue to rely on the relevant government authorities' subsidy payments throughout their entire concession periods, and this may pose the Company with relevant risks.

If toll revenue remains very low in a project with no guarantee provided by the relevant government authority or with such guarantee for a marginal period of time or level, the project company's revenue would have to fall, which may have adverse impact on the company's financial conditions.

3) Risk relating to the Operation of City Gas and Heat & Electricity Businesses

Three project companies among the Company's investment portfolio are in the city gas distribution business. The LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) distribution business in Korea is operated as follows: KOGAS imports and supplies LNG to local city gas retail distributors, and local retail distributors provide and sell so supplied LNG to end users through their own gas pipelines.

① Risks relating to change of costs pass-through policies regarding city gas retail distribution costs
City gas retail distributors secure LNG, the main fuel for the city gas distribution, through a long-term supply and demand agreement with KOGAS. Currently, the fuel costs, operating expenses, and non-operating expenses of city gas retail distributors are added to the city gas retail price to be paid by end users according to the City Gas Distribution Costs Calculation Standards. However, if changes to the policies related to the addition of these costs are applied unfavorably for the city gas retail distributors in which the Company has invested directly and/or indirectly, this could adversely affect the Company's profitability.

② Risks relating to a decline in city gas demand
If the city gas retail price or city gas demand in the area in which city gas retail distributors distribute city gas (the "Distribution Zone") falls, it could have a negative impact on the profitability of those retail distributors. Given that the demand for city gas is subject to several external variables, including population growth, economic growth rate, temperature, and fuel competitiveness, the accurate forecast thereof is difficult. A decrease in the retail price or city gas demand in the Distribution Zone of the city gas retail distributors, in which the Company has invested directly or indirectly, may adversely affect the Company's profitability.

③ Risks relating to a decrease in yield
City gas retail distributors may generate surplus revenue with sales higher than the distribution volume due to the meter gain effect from the difference between the actual distribution volume and the measured sales volume of city gas. These measurement errors are caused by gas characteristics, technical errors, and the time difference between meter readings, which can lead to a decrease in the profits of the city gas retail distributors in which the Company has invested if these measurements are modified and consequently the yield drops due to the government's policy or other reasons.

Meanwhile, in respect of the heat & electricity business of CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd. and its affiliate, in which the Company has invested, reliance on top 4 clients ("Key Clients") is high in terms of sales of steam for industrial use as they constitute approximately 85% of total steam sales thereof based on 2024 results. Thus, in the case where the Key Clients reduce their use of steam or their use of steam is decreased due to an incident such as a fire, there will be a substantial negative effect on the steam sales within the heat & electricity business.

4) Risk related to the Operation of Data Center Project Company

Lastly, in relation to Hanam Data Center, in which the Company has invested through Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd. ("GDI"), GDI is mainly reliant on rents as the core source of income. That means, the presence of vacancy or decrease in rent may deteriorate profitability of GDI.

The tenant of Hanam Data Center under the rent agreement with LG CNS Co., Ltd. leases the Data Center in entirety for use of 99% of the target IT load of 25.44MW. The tenant enters into a use agreement with users of the Data Center whereby the users are to install, maintain and control server racks, servers, and server equipment at certain spaces of the Data Center, as provided therein, at the users' costs. Considering, from the tenant's perspective, that the Data Center is one of the main sources of income for the tenant and is an asset that contributes to its share in the relevant market, and from the users' perspective, the potentially high likelihood that a large sum of CAPEX and relocation costs would be required for the relocation of servers and other machinery and equipment, neither the tenant nor the users would easily decide to leave the Data Center. However, the rent agreement may be renewed or extended upon some terms and conditions, such as rent price and agreed volume of use, unfavorable to the Company due to the decreased demand for the data center, increased supply of data centers in the Seoul Metropolitan Area or other factors prevailing at the time of renewal or extension that are unpredictable at present, and the profitability of Hanam Data Center business may decrease than expected. In addition, the rent agreement may be terminated early before expiry of the agreed term due to insolvency of the tenant or economic, social, or legal reason that is unpredictable. This would have adverse impact on the Company's business performance and cashflow for a certain period of time.

(5) Risks Relating to Operating Expenses and Capital Expenditures

Operating expenses and capital expenditures the project companies the Company has invested in spending for the operation, maintenance or management of infrastructure facilities and related facilities may differ from original forecasts. If the actual amount of operating expenses and capital expenditures exceeds original forecasts, additional expenses may lower the return on the investment the Company made to the project companies. Operating expenses and capital expenditures may increase to the extent it becomes difficult for the project companies to fulfil debt obligations, resulting in a default of obligations. Investors should be aware that if such default occurs, the concession agreement between the project company and the relevant government authority may be terminated.

In particular, with respect to the public-private partnership projects in which the Company has invested, operating expenses and capital expenditures can increase to a level that would make it difficult for the concessionaires to fulfil their obligations stated in their concession agreements, which could lead to a default of the concessionaires. Investors should be aware that, in the event of such default, the agreement between the concessionaire and the relevant government may be terminated. Investors should be aware of this factor before making an investment decision.

In the case of the city gas businesses that the Company has invested in, the fuel costs, operating expenses, and non-operating expenses of city gas retail distributors are included in the city gas retail price to be paid by end users according to the City Gas Distribution Costs Calculation Standards. If there is a disagreement regarding the calculation of distribution costs between the two project companies and the local government supervising the city gas business, which may lead to unfavorable results for the project companies such as certain costs being excluded from the distribution costs, the Company's profitability may be adversely affected. In addition, given that the operating expenses and capital expenditures for non-core businesses (which are irrelevant to the city gas distribution business) are not included in the distribution costs, the non-core business related operating expenses and capital expenditures in excess of the original forecast may have a negative impact on the return of the two project companies. However, taking into account that there are detailed calculation criteria for the city gas distribution costs and that the costs are required to be verified by an independent accounting firm, it is not highly likely to have a disagreement with local governments. Also, considering that the non-core businesses only take up a small part of both project companies' businesses, the risks related to operating expenses and capital expenditures for the city gas business are expected to be limited.

The operation of a data center essentially involves periodic maintenance and repair works on the facilities. For the Hanam Data Center, in which the Company has invested through Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd., the tenant is to carry out such works. It is not highly likely for a large amount of maintenance costs to arise out of the Hanam Data Center in the near future once the second and third phases of construction are completed in June 2025 as planned. If an unpredicted large size of repair is required, however, extra costs may be incurred in excess of the project plan, which may reduce the Company's profits or adversely affect its cash flow. Investors should be aware of these risks before making an investment decision.

(6) Risks Relating to Lawsuits

- Field investigation: In May 2020, the Ministry of Employment and Labor investigated approximately 50 entities that operate toll roads under public-private partnership by placing labor inspectors to determine whether outsourcing service workers performing road management/maintenance, toll collection or patrol would constitute 'illegal temporary work placement' under the Act on the Protection, etc. of Temporary Agency Workers. According to the investigation results, 11 of the 12 toll road projects that the Company invested in at the time of the investigation were reported to be not engaged in an illegal dispatch. As for the Machang Bridge project, there was an administrative order that some employees of an outsourcing service company should be directly hired by Machang Bridge Co., Ltd., to which such employees originally belonged, and its compliance with such order has been fully executed.

With respect to the above investigation, Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co., Ltd., one of the toll road projects in which the Company has invested, was notified by the Ministry of Employment and Labor that it was not engaged in an illegal dispatch, however, the workers of the corporation which have signed a toll collection service agreement with Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co. Ltd. filed lawsuits against Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co. Ltd., in February 2020 and March 2020, seeking for a declaratory judgment as to the legal status of workers and unpaid salary difference payments. In its judgement on 8 February 2023, the trial court ruled that in respect of the legal status of workers, Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co., Ltd. has the obligation to directly employ the workers, while in respect of the case seeking unpaid salary difference payments, the trial court found that Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co., Ltd. has no obligation to pay such salary difference. After the trial court decisions, Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co., Ltd. and workers of the corporation that signed the toll collection service agreement filed their respective appeals with respect to the portions of the trial court decisions which were unfavourable to them, and the appeal cases are currently pending at the High Court. At present, it is difficult to predict the outcome of the Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co., Ltd.'s lawsuits, but investors must be advised that there is a possibility that the outcomes of the litigations may come out to be unfavourable to the project companies which may have an adverse impact on the Company.

- Furthermore, on 25 September 2023, MCB Co., Ltd. submitted a request for arbitration to seek a declaration on its claim of KRW ~3.4 billion of overdue support payment from Gyeongsangnam-Do, the competent authority. After the amended concession agreement signed by Machang Bridge Co., Ltd. and the competent authority became effective on 26 January 2017, Machang Bridge Co., Ltd. had received support payments from the competent authority pursuant to the revenue allocation scheme. However, since January 2023, the competent authority has started applying a varied, self-developed methodology for calculating support payments payable to Project Company. As a result, the competent authority provided only KRW 0.8 billion, or KRW ~3.4 billion less than KRW 4.2 billion of support payment requested by Machang Bridge Co., Ltd. from 1 January 2023 to 25 September 2023. Accordingly, Machang Bridge Co., Ltd. submitted a request for arbitration as per the legal dispute clause in the amended concession agreement. In accordance with the terms of the amended concession agreement and the arbitration rules of the ICC, an arbitral tribunal comprising of three arbitrators will review the arbitration process and render a decision. The decision of the arbitral tribunal is expected to be made in 2025, and the decision will be final and binding to the parties involved. However, please be advised that the actual duration of the arbitration may differ from the expectation.

In addition, there is a possibility that additional legal disputes may arise with the project companies invested by the Company, which may adversely affect the financial structure of the project companies, and investors must be aware of it.

(7) Risks Relating to Assets under Construction

The Company may decide to invest in infrastructure assets under construction, and construction of large scale infrastructure assets such as toll roads, bridges, tunnels, and rails may involve potential risk factors including natural disasters, change of design and opposition of special interest groups such as religious or environmental organizations.

While predominant risks may and can be transferred to construction companies and/or relevant government authorities, the aforementioned risks may cause construction delays, loss of profits or cost overrun, which may negatively influence the Company's investment value. In particular, infrastructure facilities under construction in which the Company invests may not be completed on schedule due to natural disasters such as typhoons or floods, which may lead to decreased profits, increased maintenance costs and increased construction or reconstruction expenses.

In this case, concessionaires of such infrastructure assets may not be able to retrieve all related losses or damages through insurance policies. Additionally, in the event that the funding of such infrastructure facilities involves senior lending, senior lenders generally and customarily secure the first priority pledge against such insurance policy.

In the event that an infrastructure asset is not completed as planned, the relevant concessionaire in which the Company invested may be obliged to pay the relevant government authority related compensation for damages. Although the construction company customarily bears the obligation to compensate the concessionaire for losses or damages resulting from construction delays, such compensation may not sufficiently cover all of the concessionaire's obligations. Therefore, the concessionaire may be required to make a significant amount of additional payments due to construction delays.

1) Risks Relating to Dongbuk Light Rail Transit and Seoul East Underground Expressway projects

As for Dongbuk Light Rail Transit project and Seoul East Underground Expressway project, which are currently under construction, in case there are delays in construction after obtaining permits is completed and the construction has begun, the relevant construction companies jointly bear obligations to complete the construction within the due to the date on a Fixed Price & Lump Sum Turnkey Basis. They also bear the responsibilities to jointly compensate the concessionaire for losses resulting from delays in construction and budget increase. Notwithstanding such obligations by the construction companies, they may fail to fulfil their obligations due to various reasons including a downgrade of their credit ratings, and the failure to fulfil their obligations could result in a loss to the concessionaire.

2) Risks relating to the remaining mechanical, electrical and plumbing works for the Hanam Data Center

The second and third phases of mechanical, electrical and plumbing works are underway for the Hanam Data Center (which is planned to be completed in June 2025). Considering that the works involve the installation of extra facilities on some floors of the already completed building, they would not highly likely to have more potential risk than in construction works before completion.

With respect to any risk regarding construction delay, if the delay is caused by a cause attributable to the contractor, the contractor is liable to pay liquidated damages. GDI, as the lessor, would not highly likely assume the liability to pay to the tenant damages for default under the rent agreement. If the construction is delayed due to a force majeure event, which delays the performance of obligations by GDI as the lessor under the rent agreement, the lessor will not be liable for any default and consequent damages while such force majeure event continues.

In addition, since the lessor does not have a contractual relationship with the data center users, the risk that the lessor, Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd., will be directly liable for damages to the data center users in the event of a delay in construction is judged to be significantly low or practically nonexistent unless there are special circumstances, and the legal impact of a delay in construction on the contractor, Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd., is judged to be limited, as the construction insurance policy for the second and third phase construction contracts covers the contractor and other stakeholders in the project as insureds.

However, please note that if the ramp up is slower than expected due to schedule delays in the remaining contract works, the timing of the Company's receipt of revenue related to the Hanam Data Center Project may be delayed or the amount of revenue may be reduced, which may adversely affect the Company's distributions.

(8) Force Majeure and Other Risks Regarding Investments

Assets operated by the project companies in which the Company has invested include toll roads, bridges, tunnels, rails, ports, data center, related structures, vehicles and other transportation equipment, computers, buildings, parking facilities, city gas pipelines, power supply, and network facilities. These assets may be hindered or negatively influenced by fire, natural disasters like floods, earthquakes, and typhoons, terrorism, design or construction defects, gradient projection failure, collapse of bridges and tunnels, road sinks, labour strikes, serious traffic accidents and other unanticipated situations or events.

Such situations have affected the performance of toll roads, bridges, tunnels, rails, ports, city gas pipelines and data center in the past. If these factors influence the toll roads, bridges, tunnels, rails, ports, city gas pipelines and data center operated by the project companies in which the Company has invested, the public may lose trust in these facilities. Further, this may result in a decrease in revenues generated from operating such facilities and an increase in maintenance and recovery costs.

While all concessionaires in which the Company has invested are insured for the losses or damages arising out of natural disasters, as for certain force majeure risks such as war and terrorism, they take a discriminatory approach in purchasing an insurance depending on the nature of their investments. Damages resulting from risks not covered by the insurance may negatively affect the performance of the Company. In certain cases, compensation from insurance may not sufficiently cover the damages caused to the Company. For instance, it is uncertain whether an insurance claim will be sufficient to cover losses resulting from defects in design, construction, or maintenance of toll roads, bridges, tunnels, rails, ports, city gas pipelines, data center, etc. or the resulting revenue decrease and increased costs.

Investors should be aware of the aforementioned risks.

(9) Risks Related to the Government Laws

Among the total of 20 projects in which the Company has invested, 16 project companies are public-private partnership projects. A public-private partnership project is a project initiated pursuant to the PPP Act to contribute to the development of the national economy by promoting the private sector to make investments in infrastructure projects that have been built and operated with government budget (roads, ports, rails, schools, digital facilities (data center) and environmental facilities, etc.) and by encouraging private companies to pursue creative and efficient expansion of infrastructure sectors and operation of infrastructure assets. Investors should be aware that in case laws governing the Company and the Company's portfolio companies, including the PPP Act, are changed, it may have an adverse impact on the Company's business.

Also, the amended Toll Road Act, which was promulgated on 16 January 2018, went into effect on 17 January 2019. Within public-private projects, road projects will be subject to new restrictions following the promulgation of the amended Toll Road Act. Given that the Company's assets are mostly public-private road projects, the new restrictions may have an adverse impact on the Company's business going forward.

On the other hand, the three project companies in which the Company has invested are in city gas retail distribution business. The government grants an exclusive right to city gas retail distributors to sell city gas to customers in specified regions to prevent the overlapping investment of facilities. Therefore, there is a high barrier to entry for new companies, and it is unlikely that there will be any change in this exclusive distribution structure in the future. However, investors should be aware that changes in the legal environment that govern the Company and its business, such as the City Gas Business Act, may adversely affect the Company's business.

The Company is an investment and financing company for infrastructure assets established under the PPP Act in December 2002 and the Company's business is subject to the PPP Act and the FSCMA. Also, pursuant to Article 41-2 of the PPP Act and Article 34 of the Enforcement Decree of the FSCMA the Company must maintain minimum net assets of KRW 1 billion for six months from the registration date and KRW 5 billion after six months from the registration date. Since an investment and financing company is deemed an investment company under the FSCMA, in principle, it is deemed a "corporation" under the Commercial Act. However, in order to enhance the independence of the Board of Directors, the Board of Directors of an investment company consists of a corporate director (an asset management company) and at least two "supervisory directors." Provisions related to an investment company under the FSCMA, such as that a corporate director will represent an investment company and execute business affairs and obtain a resolution at the board of directors on important matters, are applied to an investment and financing company in the same way unless prescribed as exceptions in relevant laws.

“Restrictions on Operation of Assets” as stipulated in Article 81 of the FSCMA shall not apply to the Company under Article 44 of the PPP Act. (Please refer to Section 8 (Investments) – B. (Investment Restrictions))

Among the total of 20 projects in which the Company has invested, 16 project companies are public-private partnership projects. A public-private partnership project is a project initiated pursuant to the PPP Act to contribute to the development of the national economy by promoting the private sector to make investments in infrastructure projects that have been built and operated with government budget (roads, ports, rails, schools, digital facilities (data center) and environmental facilities, etc.) and by encouraging private companies to pursue creative and efficient expansion of infrastructure sectors and operation of infrastructure assets.

The Company aims to comply with applicable laws and requirements. However, unfavorable interpretation of applicable laws and subordinate regulations by relevant government authorities, changes in applicable laws or regulations, or enactment of new laws may have adverse effects on the Company which may lead to increased legal expenses. Investors should be aware that such changes in the legal environment may have an adverse effect on the Company.

Infrastructure projects in particular are widely affected by government policy and the value of the project companies invested by MKIF may fluctuate due to new tax policies and changes in legislation or basis of legal interpretation. Therefore, investors should be aware that the loans or equity investments made by the Company may also be affected.

The amended Toll Road Act that went into effect on 17 January 2019 added provisions applicable to road projects among public-public-private partnership projects apart from the PPP Act, which is the governing law of public-private partnership projects. The amended Toll Road Act set forth applicable provisions for the relevant government authority to request a privately funded road concessionaire to explain reasons or develop countermeasures if any of the events listed in the Toll Road Act occurs, such as material changes to privately funded roads or unlawful conducts by the privately funded road concessionaire. Furthermore, when the reasons or countermeasures proposed are deemed insufficient, the relevant government authority may request the concessionaire to amend the concession agreement and not pay all or part of government subsidies (Article 23-6 of the Toll Road Act). As a result, while the power of the relevant government authority on a privately funded road project has increased, the discretionary rights of a concessionaire may be relatively reduced. Investors should be aware that the foregoing may have an adverse effect on the Company’s business.

On the other hand, the three project companies in which the Company has invested are in city gas distribution business. The LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) distribution business in Korea is operated as follows: KOGAS imports and supplies LNG to local city gas retail distributors, and local distributors provide so supplied LNG to consumers through their own gas pipelines. The city gas business, one of the key industries just as the power and communication industries, requires a large, long-term initial investment (plumbing and safety management investment), and it holds a characteristic of monopoly, with the government granting an approval to a single entity to distribute LNG in a certain distribution zone. Therefore, local city gas retail distributors have an exclusive right with respect to a certain region, and retail prices for consumers are determined by the approval of a local government head in each region.

The main reason for the government to grant exclusive distribution rights to distributors in certain regions is to prevent the overlapping investment in distribution facilities and to ensure stable distribution of city gas, taking into account the characteristics of the city gas industry, which requires a great amount of initial investment in distribution facilities including pipelines. Therefore, considering the heavily invested pipelines already installed in respective regions, it is unlikely that there will be a change with respect to the government's policy on the exclusive right and that there a new city gas company will enter the market. Investors should note, however, that if the government policies change adversely, for example, by allowing multiple vendors to participate in the city gas distributor's market, the Company's business performance and profitability may be affected.

In addition, city gas tariffs are set with the approval from the head of the relevant local government after external verification by an accounting firm, etc. and the approval from the Price Deliberation Committee as prescribed by the ordinance of the relevant metropolitan/provincial government. Some local governments have introduced an ordinance to omit the Price Deliberation Committee's review considering that the fuel cost pass-through system has been implemented by the central government and if one year has passed since the increase of the city gas tariff and the increase rate is below the inflation target of that year. However, the ordinance may be changed again in the future.

(10) Risks Relating to Newly Constructed Competing Facilities

Among the toll road projects that the company has invested in, there are identified possibilities of new competitive transportation facilities being the Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway, Incheon Airport Expressway, and Incheon Bridge. According to the anti-competition clause under the relevant concession agreements, all concessionaires of these toll road projects have the right to receive compensation for any decrease in their sales caused by the establishment of new competitive transportation facilities as stipulated in the concession agreement. However, it is important to note that the actual compensation may fall short of the stipulated level. Please consider this factor when making investments.

On the other hand, three investment companies in which the company has invested are in city gas distribution business. The city gas distribution business operates under government-level supervision where exclusive distribution rights for certain regions are granted to city gas companies to prevent the overlapping of investment in facilities. As a result, there are high entry barriers for new companies, and it is unlikely that there will be any significant changes to this exclusive supply structure in the future. However, it is essential for investors to be aware that changes in the legal environment governing the company and its business, such as the City Gas Business Act, can have adverse effects on the company's operations.

The competing transportation facility that may affect the traffic volume of Incheon Grand Bridge and Incheon International Airport Expressway is Yeongjong-Cheongna Link Road (the 3rd Bridge), which is expected to begin construction in October 2021 and begin operation in December 2025.¹ The commencement of the 3rd Bridge is scheduled within the concession period of the Incheon Grand Bridge and Incheon International Airport Expressway.

Those competing transportation facilities that might impact the traffic volume of the Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway include the Pyeongtaek-Buyeo-Iksan Expressway (also known as the Seobu Naeryuk Expressway) and the Seoul-

Sejong Expressway. The construction of the West Inland Expressway is anticipated to commence in 2019, with phased openings expected (the Pyeongtaek-Buyeo section opened in 2024, and the Buyeo-Iksan section is expected to open in 2034)². Construction of the Seoul-Sejong Expressway began in 2016 and is planned to open in phases³. This expressway comprises the Anseong-Guri and Sejong-Anseong sections. Initially, the Anseong-Guri section was scheduled to open in 2022, and the Sejong-Anseong section in 2024⁴. However, due to the extension of the construction period, both sections are delayed by 1-2 years compared to the target schedule. The expected opening timeframe of these competitive transportation facilities falls within the period of establishing management and operation rights for the Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway.

When the competing roads begin operation, the traffic volumes of the aforementioned toll roads the Company has invested in are likely to decline. The concession agreement of each toll road project mentioned above specifies compensation for loss incurred due to newly constructed competing roads. However, there is a possibility of disagreements between the concessionaires and the relevant government authorities over the interpretation of the compensation provision in the concession agreements. In fact, Incheon Bridge Co., Ltd. submitted a request for arbitration (the “Arbitration”) to the International Chamber of Commerce (the “ICC”) to seek ICC’s declaration on the interpretation of the conditions that trigger the relevant government authority’s compensation obligation and the scope of compensation in connection with the non-compete provision, and received an arbitration award from the ICC in June 2020.

Notwithstanding the compensation provision in the concession agreements with regard to the opening of competing roads, due to differences in opinion between the relevant government authorities and concessionaires over the interpretation of the said provision, there is a possibility of not being fully compensated for the loss arising from the reduction in traffic volume caused by the opening of competing roads. Investors should be aware of the foregoing when making an investment decision.

On the other hand, three project companies the Company has invested in are in city gas distribution business. The LNG (Liquefied Natural Gas) distribution business in Korea is operated as follows: KOGAS imports and supplies LNG to local city gas retail distributors, and local distributors provide so supplied LNG to consumers through their own gas pipelines. The city gas business, one of the key industries just as the power and communication industries, requires a large, long-term initial investment (plumbing and safety management investment), and it holds a characteristic of monopoly, with the government granting approval to a single entity to distribute LNG in a certain distribution zone. Therefore, local city gas retail distributors have an exclusive right with respect to a certain region, and retail prices for consumers are determined by the approval of a local government head in each region.

The main reason for the government to grant exclusive distribution rights to certain regions is to prevent the overlapping investment in distribution facilities and to ensure the stable distribution of city gas, taking into account the characteristics of the city gas industry, which requires a great amount of initial investment in facilities including pipelines. Therefore, considering the heavily invested pipelines already in place, it is unlikely that there will be a change with respect to the government’s policy on the exclusive right and that there a new city gas company will enter the market, investors should note, however, that if the government policies change adversely, for example, by allowing multiple vendors to participate in city gas distributor’s market, the Company’s business performance and profitability may be affected.

(11) Risks Relating to Unfulfilled Payment Obligation by Relevant Government Authorities, Other Government Authorities and Local Governments

Among the total of 20 projects in which the Company has invested, 16 project companies are concessionaires in public-private partnerships based on concession agreements with relevant government authorities. The concession agreements include the payment obligations by the relevant government authorities to pay a certain required amount to the concessionaires. However, the payment obligation may be unfulfilled or delayed due to the government policy, financial difficulty of the relevant government authority or other reasons during the deliberation or execution of the budget of the relevant government authority. If the payment obligation of the relevant government authority or other government authorities fails to be timely fulfilled, the operating performance and the financial condition of the project company may be adversely affected and lead even to project restructuring or a lawsuit. Investors should be aware of this.

The three project companies that the Company has invested in have been establishing city gas pipeline networks in accordance with the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) entered into between relevant local governments pursuant to Article 19-3 of the City Gas Business Act. In addition, under the MOU signed with the relevant government authority or its ordinance, the relevant government authority might be required to make a support payment in connection with the above city gas pipeline network. However, the payment obligation may be unfulfilled or delayed due to the government policy, financial difficulty of the relevant government authority or other reasons during the deliberation or execution of the budget of the relevant government authority. However, given that the Company will not be obligated to make additional investments in the case where these support payments are not paid by relevant government authorities, such risk is expected to be rather limited.

Among the total of 20 projects in which the Company has invested, 16 project companies are concessionaires in public-private partnerships based on concession agreements with relevant government authorities, and the other four projects are continuing projects (going concern, non-public-private partnership projects) without a definite expiration date.

Note 3) Project companies have the right to receive termination payments if the relevant concession agreement is terminated prior to expiration of the concession term, including termination due to events attributable to the concession company, the competent authority, or for events of force majeure

Note 4) Construction period of 5 years expected, followed by a 30-year operating period

Minimum Revenue Guarantee ("MRG")	- If the amount of the operating income fails to meet the estimated operating income of the concession agreement during a particular operating period, the relevant government authority bears a portion of the market risk by making up for the deficit up to the amount determined in the concession agreement. - In the past, the MRG clause has been inserted in concession agreements for the purpose of attracting private investors, supporting outside loans and mitigating uncertainty during the early operating stages. The level of MRG has played an important role in determining the credibility of public-private partnership projects. - However, as the MRG has placed a heavy financial burden on government authorities, government authorities no longer provide the MRG for new publicprivate partnerships and are in the process of amending terms of the existing businesses for which government authorities have been covering the MRG (e.g. profit sharing through refinancing, project restructuring, etc.). However, this is only possible through mutual agreement with the existing concessionaires.

Termination Payment for Early Termination of Business	- If the public-private partnership has been terminated prior to the agreed termination date, the relevant government authority must pay the termination payment to the concessionaire in accordance with the concession agreement and the grounds for such termination. time and by the project. The level of MRG of a project has played an important role in determining the credibility of relevant public-private partnership projects. However, as the MRG payout has placed a heavy financial burden on government authorities, government authorities began to reduce the guarantee period and level in 2003. Then, it stopped providing the MRG for private-proposed projects in 2006 and government-announced projects in 2009. As a result, in a project not adopting the MRG scheme, the possibility of recovering investments may reduce.

the government policy, financial difficulty of the relevant government authority or other reasons during the deliberation or execution of budget of the relevant government authority.

If the payment obligation of the relevant government authority or other government authorities is unfulfilled in due course, the operating performance and the financial condition of the project company may be adversely affected, weakening the project company’s capability to repay its debts. Investors should be aware that this may result in reduced interest payment, principal repayment and dividends that the Company shall receive from the project company and may have an adverse impact on the Company’s business and financial conditions.

In addition, the non-fulfillment of payment obligations by the relevant government authorities may lead to project restructuring or a lawsuit. Previously, in relation to the Woomyunsan Tunnel, Kwangju Second Beltway Section 1 and Machang Bridge projects, the relevant government authorities have refused to pay the MRG and toll-freeze compensation. The disputes with the relevant government authorities were resolved by negotiating a project restructuring with the objective of preserving the value of the Company’s investments.

(Source: Data provided by the Company)

Three project companies that the Company has invested in have been establishing city gas pipeline networks in accordance with the MOU entered into between relevant local governments pursuant to Article 19-3 of the City Gas Business Act.

In addition, under the MOU signed with the relevant government authority or its ordinance, the relevant government authority might be required to make a support payment in connection with the above city gas pipeline network. However, the payment obligation may be unfulfilled or delayed due to the government policy, financial difficulty of the relevant government authority or other reasons during the deliberation or execution of budget of the relevant government authority. However, given that the Company will not be obligated to make additional investments in the case where these support payments are not paid by relevant government authorities, such risk is rather limited.

(12) Risks Relating to Legal Sanctions Imposed for Failure to Comply with Regulation or Agreement

Currently, a majority of the project companies invested by the Company are subject to the regulations of relevant government authorities, and the Company may continue its investment in similarly regulated businesses and sectors. Further, the project companies undertake infrastructure in accordance with government approvals, agreements and other regulations or policies that may be controversial over the interpretations and binding force. If the project companies do not comply with respective applicable regulations, policies or contractual obligations, they may face legal sanctions such as fines, have approvals cancelled, and/or be deprived of the right to manage and operate and generate revenues from the infrastructure facilities.

In addition, terms of concession or other agreements to be executed between the government authority and a project company may be in more favour of the relevant government authorities compared with the terms in customary commercial agreements. In addition to its contractual right, the government also holds considerable authority to change or strengthen regulations and policies that may affect the operation of the concessionaires and may make political decisions that are unfavourable to the concessionaires.

Investors should be aware of the aforementioned risks when making an investment decision.

(13) Order and Disposition by Relevant Government Authority

Among the total of 20 projects in which the Company has invested, 16 projects are public-private partnership projects, and the relevant government authority, as the administrative agency supervising the relevant public-private partnership projects and a party of the concession agreement, is entitled to the rights of supervision/order, the termination of business, and disposition for public interest. Notwithstanding the limited supervision and order rights as stipulated in the PPP Act, there have been instances where the relevant government authorities have exercised their rights extensively in an arbitrary manner. Also, as for privately funded roads, the amended Toll Road Act enforced recently specifies that a relevant government authority may request to change a concession agreement and not pay all or part of government subsidies in case certain conditions are met. This resulted in an increase in the power of the relevant government authority. Although the concession agreement provides the predetermined termination payment payable to the concessionaire upon the termination of the concession agreement, this termination payment may be insufficient to fully cover the concessionaire’s payment obligations and performance of other obligations or to secure the full value of the investments made by the Company.

As for the three city gas businesses in which the Company has invested, the relevant government authorities are the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy and other administrative authorities and municipal governments which deal with the city gas affairs, which have the authority to (i) grant a permit, (ii) alter or cancel a permit and (iii) issue an order for business suspension or restriction, etc. In addition, city gas suppliers must periodically undergo a precision safety diagnosis and safety assessment to be carried out by the Korea Gas Safety Corporation, and based on the result of such assessment, the Minister of Trade, Industry and Energy may order to take necessary measures such as repairment of and/or improvement in the gas supply facilities. Although it is unlikely that the permits will be revoked considering city gas companies’ exclusive distribution rights with respect to certain regions, there could be an order or action of the relevant government authorities if the Company does not meet the safety requirements under the City Gas Business Act.

Among the total of 20 projects in which the Company has invested, 16 projects are public-private partnerships, and the relevant government authority, as the administrative agency supervising the relevant public-private partnership and a party of the concession agreement, is entitled to the following rights:

Item	Description
Supervision/Order	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Pursuant to the PPP Act, the relevant government authority may supervise the tasks relating to the public-private partnership and issue orders necessary for supervision for the grounds prescribed by Article 35 of the Enforcement Decree of the PPP Act, including but not limited to, the prevention of defective construction, normal operation of the facilities, and essential maintenance, provided that it does not infringe upon free management of the concessionaire (Article 45 of the PPP Act) - Pursuant to the Toll Road Act, the relevant government authority may set standards for creating environment to maintain and manage privately funded roads safely and efficiently and order necessary improvement measures (Article 23-2 of the Toll Road Act).
Termination of Business, Disposition for Public Interest, and Revision of Concession Agreements	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - If the termination conditions provided in the concession agreement have been met, the relevant government authority may terminate the concession agreement before the end of its term. - Pursuant to Article 47 of the PPP Act, the relevant government authority may implement the disposition for public interest following a review by the Public-Private Partnership Review Committee - In a certain situation, a toll road management agency may request the modification of a concession agreement after consulting with the Private Road Management Support Center (Article 23-5 Paragraph 3 of the Toll Road Act).

Other Rights	Apart from the above rights, the relevant government authority may be entitled to the rights of operation assessment and management as provided in the concession agreement
--------------	---

Notwithstanding the limited supervision and order rights as stipulated in the PPP Act, there have been instances where the relevant government authorities have exercised their rights extensively in an arbitrary manner. Investors should note that there have been certain cases where some of the Company's project companies filed an administrative lawsuit against the relevant government authorities. For detailed information on pending lawsuits of the Company, please refer to Section A (Company Risks) (6) Risks Relating to Lawsuits.

On a separate note, the concession agreement may be terminated by the relevant government authority under the special circumstances set out below.

- Force majeure
- Defect in the construction of the relevant infrastructure facilities
- Bankruptcy of the concessionaire
- Dissolution of the concessionaire or a shareholders' resolution for liquidation
- Material breach by the concessionaire of the relevant laws, the concession agreement or any government order

Article 47, paragraph 1 of the PPP Act stipulates the conditions for disposition for public interest as follows.

1. Where it is necessary for public interest such as efficient operation of the infrastructure or a change of circumstances
2. Where it is required for the efficient implementation of the infrastructure construction works
3. Where force majeure such as war or natural disaster occurs

Although the concession agreement provides the predetermined termination payment payable to the concessionaire upon the termination of the concession agreement, this termination payment may be insufficient to fully cover the concessionaire's payment obligations and performance of other obligations or to secure the full value of the investments made by the Company.

Pursuant to Article 23-5 of the Toll Road Act, in the event of any one of the following subparagraphs under Paragraph 1 of the same Article, such as a material change of circumstances or unlawful conduct by a private road concessionaire, a toll road management agency may request a private road concessionaire to explain the reasons or develop countermeasures. In case the concessionaire fails to explain the reasons, or the reasons are not deemed sufficient or in case the countermeasures are not developed or the countermeasures are not deemed sufficient, the toll road management agency may request to change the concession agreement upon consulting with the Private Road Management Support Center.

④ In case a private road concessionaire does not comply with the request pursuant to Paragraph 3, a toll road management agency may not pay all or part of government subsidies set forth in the concession agreement.

On the other hand, in connection with the three city gas projects in which the Company has invested, the relevant government authorities are the administrative government supervising the city gas business affairs, such as the Ministry of Trade, Industry, and Energy, and each local government which has approved the general city gas business, and they are entitled to the rights of order and the rights to take actions as follows:

Cancellation of Permit	Where a general city gas business entity is subject to any of the subparagraphs under Article 9(1) of the City Gas Business Act, for example, failing to meet the permitted standards, violating the order to change a gas distribution plan or restricting gas distribution, etc., the head of relevant government authority may revoke such permit or order the suspension of, or the restrictions on, his/her business for a fixed period of not exceeding six months (Article 9(1) of the City gas Business Act).
Order to Change Gas Distribution Plan	Where the head of relevant government authority deems that a gas distribution plan is likely to hinder the promotion of the public interest because the gas distribution plan becomes inappropriate due to changes in social or economic circumstances, he/she may order each general city gas business entity to modify such gas distribution plan within a given period (Article 18(5) of the City gas Business Act).
Order to Apply for Approval for Change of Distribution Regulations	Where the head of relevant government authority deems that the distribution regulations are likely to hinder the promotion of the public interest because such regulations became inappropriate due to changes in social or economic circumstances, he/she may order each general city gas business entity to apply for approval of modification to such regulations within a given period (Article 20(7) of the City gas Business Act).
Order to Restrict Gas Distribution	Where it is deemed that citizens' livelihood and the public interest will be obviously hindered unless emergency restrictions are put on gas use due to a temporary shortage in the distribution of city gas, the Minister of Trade, Industry and Energy may order city gas business entities to restrict gas distribution to the necessary extent (Article 24(2) of the City gas Business Act).
Order to Change Safety Management Regulations	Any city gas business entity shall establish safety management regulations concerning the maintenance of the safety of gas distribution facilities, and shall submit the safety management regulations to the head of relevant government authority before commencing business. If the head of relevant government authority deems it necessary to enhance safety standards, he/she may order the relevant city gas business entities to modify such safety management regulations (Article 26(1) and (3) of the City Gas Business Act).
Order to Improve Gas Facilities	Where the relevant government authorities deem that any gas distribution facilities fail to meet the facilities' standards, they may issue an order to the relevant city gas business entity to repair, improve or relocate such gas distribution facilities to make them meet the standards, or issue an order to take measures necessary for preventing hazards, such as suspension or restriction of gas distribution, or suspension or restriction of the use of gas distribution facilities. Where the relevant government authorities deem it urgent and inevitable to maintain public safety, they may order any city gas business entity to relocate gas distribution facilities, suspend or restrict the use thereof, or discard gas in the gas distribution facilities (Article 27 of the City Gas Business Act).

(14) Risks Relating to Failure of Relevant Government Authority to Fulfill Obligation to Raise Toll Fare

In relation to the 14 toll road projects and one rail project that the Company has invested in, while the concession agreement provides that the actual toll shall be raised in accordance with the agreed toll according to the principle that the users benefit from the relevant infrastructure facilities are obligated to bear the costs (the “Payment by Beneficiary Principle”), there may be cases under which the actual toll may be lower than the agreed toll due to a decision made by the head of the relevant government authority or other government authorities. As the difference between the actual toll and the agreed toll increases due to the fact that the actual toll remains lower than the agreed toll for an extended period of time, the relevant government authority may find it more difficult to normalize the actual toll, which may result in heavier financial burden for the relevant government authority. This may eventually lead to a higher chance of dispute between the relevant government authority and the concessionaire.

As for 14 toll road projects and one rail project among 16 public-private partnership projects that the Company has invested in, the concessionaire is entitled to collect the agreed toll from users pursuant to the concession agreement, and this is based on the Payment by Beneficiary Principle. As provided in the concession agreement, the agreed toll changes annually in line with the consumer price inflation rate for some of the projects, whereas the toll is determined on a nominal basis for the other projects.

In order to raise the agreed toll following an increase in the consumer price inflation rate (or any other applicable reasons), approval from the relevant government authority is required. While the concession agreement provides that the actual toll shall be raised in accordance with the agreed toll pursuant to the Payment by Beneficiary Principle, there may be cases under which the actual toll is lower than the agreed toll due to a decision made by the head of the relevant government authority or other government authorities. This obligates the relevant government authority to pay the difference between the agreed toll and the actual toll and places a heavier financial burden on the relevant government authority as the actual traffic volume increases.

As the difference between the actual toll and the agreed toll increases due to the fact that the actual toll remains lower than the agreed toll for an extended period of time, the relevant government authority may find it more difficult to normalize the actual toll, which may result in heavier financial burden for the relevant government authority. This may eventually lead to a higher chance of dispute between the relevant government authority and the concessionaire. Even if the compensation for the difference between the actual toll and the agreed toll (“toll-freeze compensation”) is to be paid by the government, the payment of the toll-freeze compensation would be subsequent to the collection of the actual toll which may lower the concessionaire’s estimated earnings and cash flow in the short term and have an adverse impact on the concessionaire’s ability to repay its debts and pay dividends.

In addition, even if the relevant government authorities become obligated to raise a toll fare, it is still possible for the government to limit the toll raise or request for a toll cut considering the overall Korean economy, inflation rate, and negative consumer perception of toll raise.

(15) Risks Relating to Determination of City Gas Retail Tariff / Distribution Costs

In relation to the three city gas projects that the Company has invested in, the retail price to the end users is to be determined by adding retail distribution costs to the wholesale price of KOGAS, which is subject to approval of local governments given that the city gas is considered one of public goods. There is a possibility that each local government may adjust the retail distribution costs of city gas retail distributors pursuant to the government's policies or restrictions on the increase of gas price, which may affect the Company's profitability.

In relation to the three city gas projects that the Company has invested in, the city gas charges consist of the imported costs of LNG, and distribution costs of wholesalers and retailers. And when the gas tariff increases or decreases, the retail distribution costs shall be subject to the Price Deliberation Committee's review and the supervisory authority's rate approval procedures as the distribution costs are considered public charges. The retail distribution costs of city gas retail distributors are determined after (i) the review by the Price Deliberation Committee of the relevant local government and (ii) the verification by an independent accounting firm following the calculation by a head of relevant government authority on a total cost basis taking into account the economic characteristics of the region, demand level, business history, and costs required for distribution.

(Source: Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy)

There is a possibility that each local government may adjust the retail distribution costs of city gas retail distributors pursuant to the government's policies or restrictions on the increase of gas price, which may affect the Company's profitability.

The City Gas Distribution Costs Calculation Standards, the guideline published by the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy, state the calculation standards for distribution costs including the fair cost and make an independent professional organization report to the head of relevant government authority after completing its independent and fair verification with respect to the fair cost and the fair return based on the accounting data submitted by the city gas retail distributor. The approval of the head of relevant government authority for distribution costs needs to be made in accordance with Article 20 (3) of the City Gas Business Act, and if there is a disagreement between city gas retail distributors and a local government regarding the calculation of distribution costs including appropriate cost prices, further discussions may be needed between the two parties.

In addition, with regard to the additional fair return system, which awards additional fair returns within the 3% range when local governments calculate the city gas retail distribution costs (which is to expand the distribution of city gas to unpenetrated areas), there is a possibility that the additional fair return level may be lowered while the city gas penetration rate increases due to less investment required to install additional city gas facilities.

(16) Risks Relating to Distribution on Preferred Stock of CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd.

Through the investment made in CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd., the Company now holds Class 1 preferred stocks that entitle the Company to receive dividends equivalent to an annual average yield of 6% in priority. Unlike bonds or borrowings, the payment of dividends is subject to the availability of surplus cash or profits in accordance with the Commercial Code of Korea. In the event that CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd. does not have sufficient surplus cash or available profits for dividend distribution, there is a possibility that dividends may not be paid, or their payment may be delayed.

(17) Risks Relating to Adjustment of Tariffs for Heat & Electricity Business

Regarding the heat & electricity business of CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd., in which the Company has invested, the current revenue structure & contract terms indicate that electricity, heat and steam tariffs are partially linked to relevant costs including fuel prices. However, it should be noted that changes to such costs might not be fully reflected in the tariffs. Consequently, if future changes in related costs are not appropriately reflected in the tariffs, it could have an adverse impact on the profitability of the heat & electricity business. While the fuel costs incurred as part of the heat & electricity business, such as LPG, LNG, and external hydrothermal, may fluctuate, there is a possibility that the tariffs for electricity, heat, and steam may not fully align with such fluctuation in fuel costs. Therefore, investors should be aware of such factors.

(18) Risks Relating to Fuel (LPG) for Heat & Electricity Business

Regarding the heat & electricity business of CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd., in which the Company has invested, it is important to note that LPG is one of the fuels used in operating the business. In comparison to other fuels utilized in the heat & electricity business, such as LNG, the use of LPG necessitates continuous attention and oversight due to environmental (such as relatively high carbon emissions) and safety concerns (such as risks associated with high flammability). In the future, there is a possibility of increased expenses related to strengthening the management and supervision of LPG usage in the heat & electricity business. Such potential cost increases can have a negative impact on the Company's profitability.

(19) Risk of Error or Failure in the Operation of Data Center

The Hanam Data Center, in which the Company has invested through Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd., strives to protect the information as the important assets of users by providing space at the Data Center with computing facilities, electric power, security facilities, and disaster prevention facilities, but the services provided by the Center may be slowed down or become unavailable due to reasons such as system or network failures, power outages, cyberattacks, computer viruses, communication failures, or human error. In addition, in the event of a natural disaster such as an earthquake, fire, or flood, the Company's operation of the Data Center may be substantially disrupted or facilities may be destroyed. If a serious failure occurs, the services provided to users will be compromised, and if such failure is not properly and timely detected and addressed, this would undermine users' trust in the Center, and lead to a lawsuit, regulatory investigations, liability and regulatory penalties, which would ultimately adversely affect the Company's reputation and cash flow.

(20) Risks related to Data Center-Related Regulations and Complaints

Recently, the Korean government decided to tighten restrictions on the location of new data centers in the Seoul Metropolitan Area, which has a high burden on the power system and supply, and amended the Enforcement Decree of the Electricity Business Act to give the authority to refuse to supply electricity if a data center's electricity consumption places an undue burden on the power system. Also, a special law was enacted to promote distributed energy by introducing the power system impact assessment system. The Hanam Data Center, in which the Company invested through Green Digital Infra Co., Ltd., has already been built and is not directly subject to the regulation to restrict the location of new data centers. The Center is relatively unlikely to be affected by the restrictions, but we cannot rule out the possibility that regulations on power consumption of data centers in the metropolitan area will be newly established or modified in such a way to adversely affect the operation of the Center.

In addition, the Center is exposed to the potential disruption of business due to complaints from residents, such as concerns about the generation of electromagnetic waves. No complaints have been filed that would have significant impact on the operation of the Center. The possibility of new complaints due to concerns about electromagnetic waves is relatively low, as the Center is already in operation. However, investors should be aware that time and money may be spent in the process of responding to such complaints, if any.

(21) Risks Related to Strengthening ESG Policies

Recently, as ESG policies have been strengthened around the world, electricity costs are on the rise. In Korea, ESG policies such as greenhouse gas reduction are being enacted into law, through the enactment of the Framework Act on Carbon Neutrality and Green Growth, to respond to the climate crisis. In addition, companies are considering participating in ESG-related agreements such as RE100.

Data centers are facilities that essentially use a lot of electricity, and such stronger ESG policies can lead to an increase in electricity costs, etc. In the case of the Hanam Data Center, the tenant bears the cost of electricity, but the increased electricity cost in the future may have a negative impact on rent negotiations during renewal in the future, so investors should be aware of this risk factor before investing.

B. Company Risks

(1) Risks Relating to Distribution Payout

There has been an ongoing disbursement of cash due to the payment of distribution in order to maintain stable investment return for shareholders and to qualify for corporate tax exemption (applied if 90% or more of the Company's distributable income is paid as distributions). However, the Company has a need for liquidity due to the timing mismatch between the cash inflow and the recognition of revenue in accounting. As of 31 December 2024, the Company's investments in subordinated loans and equity securities of the project companies, of which associated cash inflows are relatively deferred to the late part of the concession periods of the project companies, account for 75.3% of the Company's total investment amount. Therefore, in case the level of cash outflow resulting from the payment of distribution is raised, the Company's financial soundness may deteriorate.

There has been an ongoing disbursement of cash due to the payment of distributions in order to maintain stable investment returns for shareholders and also to qualify for a deduction of the taxable income pursuant to Article 51-2 of the Korean Corporate Income Tax Act (in the event 90% or more of distributable income is paid as distributions, the amount of distribution is deducted from the taxable income of the applicable fiscal year). Pursuant to the FSCMA and also in accordance with the Company's AOI, the Company may pay distributions to shareholders in the form of distributions and/or over-distributions of profits, in which case there is a possibility that the distributions may be made in excess of the Company's net income in the relevant fiscal period in order to maintain shareholder value. Also, depending on the Company's financial conditions, the Company may provide distributions to shareholders in the form of new shares instead of payment in cash up to the amount of the profit distributions.

The following is the Company's historical distribution payouts per share.

The Company's distributions are derived from the interest income and dividend income from the loans and equity securities as investments in the project companies. The Company's interest income was 70.5% (the average for the last three years) of the Company's revenue. Recurring dividend income has been generated since 2015 from New Airport Hiway Co., Ltd., Soojungsan Investment Co., Ltd., Cheonan-Nonsan Expressway Co., Ltd., Kwangju Ring Road Co., Ltd., Woomyunsan Infraway Co., Ltd. and CNCITY Energy Co., Ltd. The dividend income for 2024 increased by approximately KRW 31.1 billion compared to the same period in the immediately preceding year.

Interest income, a major source of the Company's revenue, is recognized according to the principle of accrual accounting. However, in the case of some project companies, cash inflow is delayed, which results in a timing mismatch between the cashflow from interest income and the recognition of interest income in accounting. Therefore, the Company's need for liquidity may increase and the financial burden may rise.

Cash outflow from the payment of distribution is expected to continue in the future. As of 31 December 2024, given that the Company's investments in subordinated loans and equity securities of the project companies, of which associated cash inflows are relatively deferred to the late part of the concession periods of the project companies, account for 75.3% of the Company's total investment amount. Therefore, if the size of cash outflow from the payment of the Company's distribution increases, the Company's financial soundness may deteriorate.

(2) Risk Related to Uncertainty in Financing

The Company contemplates securing and financing its future investments by raising additional capital and/or incurring additional debt. However, investors should be aware that the Company's plans for financing may encounter difficulties due to the following reasons.

- ① Due to the difficulty in predicting the effectiveness, timing, and size of future investments, it may be difficult to secure financing in favourable terms within a short period of time.
- ② According to the PPP Act, the debt-to-share capital ratio may not exceed 30% and the loan may only be used for making investments and funding operating costs.
- ③ If the Company maintains the current distribution policy of distributing the greater of the distributable income and the taxable income, surplus funds available for investment may be reduced.
- ④ The Company may not be able to issue the required number of shares or corporate bonds due to time constraints or the lack of investor demand.
- ⑤ Capital increase or borrowing under favorable terms may be difficult due to market conditions or negative forecasts of the Company's businesses, and the failure to secure capital may hinder successful execution of the Company's investment strategies.

(3) Risks Relating to Debt

The Company may borrow or issue bonds up to the amount equal to 30% of the Company's share capital under Article 41-5(1) of the PPP Act (the "borrowing capacity"). Based on the nonconsolidated financial statements as of 31 December 2024, the Company's outstanding debt balance is KRW 400 billion (principal amount), which consists of KRW 200 billion of fixed-rate corporate bonds and KRW 200 billion drawn from the short-term bond facility with the facility size of KRW 539.1 billion (nil has been drawn from KRW 250 billion of credit facility).

(4) Risks Relating to Interest Rate Increase (Company)

The revolving credit facility and the short-term bond facility the Company has committed to are floating-rate debts. Therefore, in a rising interest rate market, the interest the Company needs to pay with regard to these debt facilities may increase, which in turn may adversely affect the Company's financial conditions.

(5) Risks Relating to Intensified Competition in Making New Investments

The Company aims to invest in project companies constructing or operating toll roads, tunnels, bridges, rails, ports, city gas, digital (data center) and other infrastructure facilities, and competes with other consortiums and companies in order to make new investments. Competitors such as large construction companies and other investment firms may have local experience and knowledge crucial to make competitive bidding for infrastructure projects in Korea.

They also have sufficient financial resources necessary to make a competitive offer on pricing and terms. Due to this competition, the Company may face difficulties in making future investments, and the Company may accept less economically favourable terms compared to the previously accepted terms. Additionally, some of the Company's competitors may not be required to pay certain expenditures such as management fees, while the Company is required to make such payments to its asset manager.

Please be advised that if the Company is unable to make new investments or is only able to do so under less favourable terms, the Company may not be able to achieve its growth strategies or investment objectives.

(6) Risks Relating to Entrustment of Tasks

The Company does not have full-time directors or employees and is required to designate an asset manager (collective investment company), a custodian, a sales agent, and an administrator. The asset manager operates and manages assets in accordance with the regulations of the FSCMA and the PPP Act and is expected to continue holding its collective investment business license in the future. If the asset manager no longer holds the collective investment business license, the Company may be required to appoint another asset manager, and this may have an adverse impact on the financials and business of the Company.

D. Investor Characteristics

Pursuant to the PPP Act, the Company invests in infrastructure projects with medium-to-long operation periods. Toll road, rail and city gas businesses have a relatively monopolistic feature, and in that regard, the emergence of competing assets is limited while the generation of stable cash flow is possible in general considering their characteristics. Compared to toll road and other projects, ports may be exposed to a higher investment risk, and depending on the relevant market conditions, a higher volatility in cash flow. In the case of the Hanam Data Center investment, as the rent agreement commits the tenant to use the entire area and capacity of the Center, stable cash flow over the term of the agreement is expected. Furthermore, considering that if the rent agreement is not renewed, the tenant's income decreases and the data center users may have to incur large capital expenditures and relocation expenses, and thus the risk associated with agreement renewal would be mitigated.

The Company may make additional investments other than the current 20 projects in its portfolio, but since the Company can only invest in companies engaged in infrastructure businesses, the risk would be relatively less likely to rapidly increase in terms of cash flow volatility. However, as the Company is a closed-end fund and its shares are listed and traded on the Korea Exchange, the investors of the Company may be exposed to the risk of price volatility depending on when the respective investor buys or sells his or her shares, irrespective of the value of the Company’s assets.

Overall, the Company possesses a moderate level of risk, rated level 4 on a scale of 6.

However, the rating is a subjective rating by MKAM and should not be recognized as an official rating from any rating agencies and should not be a substitution of your own assessment of the risks associated with an investment in the Company or the Company’s business.

The six risk categories are:

Risk Level	Level 4	Moderate
------------	---------	----------

Infrastructure businesses, in general, have a monopolistic feature with high barriers to entry and their volumes or usages are expected to increase. If their sales increase over time as expected, performance would improve and debts decline, resulting in enhancement of cash flow and distribution. The Company has strong potential for growth and, considering these aspects, the Company considers itself suitable to “investors with preference for stable, long-term cash flow.”

11. Process of Purchase, Conversion, and Redemption of Shares

A. Purchase

The Company is a closed-end type fund listed on the stock market of the Korea Exchange.

The Company delisted its GDRs from the London Stock Exchange on 24 March 2016 due to low cost effectiveness arising from foreign investors steadily converting most of the GDRs to original shares listed on the Korea Exchange. The Company originally issued the GDRs to improve investment accessibility of foreign investors in March 2006.

The price at which you can buy or sell the Company shares will depend on the prevailing market price at the time. The liquidity of the shares may vary depending on market situations and the changes in the trading volume may cause a limit in the purchase and sale of the shares. Detailed information about taxation on purchase and/or sale can be found in Chapter 2. Company Overview, Section 14. Distribution and Taxation.

Redemption

Shareholders of the Company may not request redemption of their shares as the Company is a closed-end fund.

B. Conversion

Not applicable

12. Calculation of Net Asset Value (NAV) and Valuation of Assets

A. Calculation and Disclosure of NAV

For all equity and loan investments in Infrastructure Assets, the Company has adopted a valuation policy where all equity investments are held at their acquisition cost and all loan investments are held at their amortized costs. The NAV per share is calculated by dividing the total NAV by the number of shares on issue.

Accordingly, the Company’s total NAV and, as a result, the NAV per share may not match the share price determined by the stock market or the market participants’ expectation of the future value of the Company.

As a result, it is not anticipated that the Company’s NAV per share will vary greatly from period to period and, as a result, the value of the Company’s equity and loan investments in Infrastructure Assets may not match the value judged by the market.

Item	Description
Calculation method	NAV = (total assets – total liabilities) / number of outstanding shares
Calculation frequency	Daily
Disclosure frequency	Quarterly (daily disclosure is not required under the PPP Act)
Disclosure method and place	Included in the quarterly asset management reports

Note 2) Fee rates were calculated by annualizing the expenses that have been accrued in 2024 in relation to the aforementioned Service Providers against the market capitalization calculated based on volume weighted average trading price per share in 2024.

Note 3) The management fee was changed on 1 April 2019. The details are published on the Company's disclosure dated 18 January 2019. The management fee of 0.85% in the above table is based on the new management fee scheme.

Note 4) The Company is a CIV and does not have other class except for its shares listed on the Korea Exchange. Therefore, comparing the total fee of the Company with that of the CIVs of the same class is not applicable.

Note 5) For the total fees and expenses (including the fees for collective investment scheme of investees), the Company's total fees and expenses are stated as the Company is not a fund of funds, and thus it has no collective investment scheme of investees.

<Example: Total fees and expenses for a shareholder with an investment of KRW 10 million>

The fees and charges payable by investors are linked to the stock price and the number of shares, the amount of investment commitments, borrowings from outside sources, cashes and cash equivalents, etc. of the Company. As shares of the Company are listed on the Korea Exchange, the stock price fluctuates real time during the open hours of the stock market. Moreover, as the Company has invested, and will invest, through borrowings or paid-in capital increases, the number of shares, amount of investment commitments, borrowings from outside sources, cashes and cash equivalents, etc. of the Company are highly likely to continue to change. In light of this, it is not easy for the Company to calculate in advance the total amount of fees that investors would have to pay in the future.

The following is the management fee payable to the asset manager, which represents the biggest portion of fees and charges payable by investors:

Management Fee

The management fee is payable quarterly in arrears and is calculated as follows:

$$[(NIV+C) \times 0.85\%] \times (N/365)$$

Where:

NIV = the net investment value for the relevant quarter

C = the aggregate commitments to be made by the Company, its wholly owned companies, trusts and other entities with respect to the investments (other than cash and cash equivalents)

N = the number of days in the quarter

The net investment value (NIV) for any quarter equals (i.e. ①+②-③). If the Company's net borrowings (i.e., ②-③) is a positive value, it shall be deemed zero (0) when calculating the NIV.

① The Company's market value being:

a. in respect of a quarter, the aggregate of the market value of the Company's shares calculated on the basis of the average closing number of the Company's shares issued and outstanding during each trading day of the quarter multiplied by the volume weighted average trading price per share traded on the Korea Exchange over those trading days; and

② External borrowings

The total amount of any external borrowings by the Company, the Company’s wholly-owned companies, trusts or other entities (but not including any borrowings held by any operating or project company, trust or other entity controlled by the Company or held specifically for the benefit of such an entity) at the end of the quarter)

③ Cash or cash equivalents

The aggregate amount invested by the Company, the Company’s wholly-owned companies, trusts or other entities in cash or cash equivalents (but not including cash or cash equivalents held by any operating or project company, trust or other entity controlled by the Company or held specifically for the benefit of such an entity) at the end of the quarter.

The management fee for a quarter is due as at the last day of each quarter and is to be calculated by the asset manager as at the last day of each quarter and is payable in cash by the Company to the asset manager within 15 business days thereafter. The asset manager may apply all or a portion of the management fee payable to it in respect of any quarter to purchase the Company’s shares, to the extent permitted under the relevant law. The number of the Company’s shares to be issued to the asset manager is to be equal to the amount of the management fee which the asset manager elects to apply to purchase the Company’s shares divided by the volume weighted average trading price per share traded on the Korea Exchange during the last 15 trading days of the relevant quarter for which the management fee is payable.

loans and proceeds from refinancing, which are not otherwise reflected in the Company's non-consolidated income statements.

The Company intends to declare and distribute to the shareholders the greater of (i) the income in each business year or (ii) the distributable income, in each case in relation to Article 51-2 of the Korean Corporate Income Tax Act for deduction of such distributions from the Company's taxable income, but this may change in future upon the Board's resolution or change in distribution policy. Here, distributable income is defined for such purposes as the non-consolidated net income after deduction of income taxes as set forth in the Company's financial statements prepared under Korean GAAP, adjusted further to include retained earnings or deduct any deficit and any earned surplus reserve pursuant to Article 458 of the Commercial Code. If needed, the Company may make distributions to shareholders through refinancing under discretion. In the event that there is an expense item which results in a decrease in the Company's distributable income for any given fiscal period, the Company may, at the Company's discretion, make an over-distribution of profits to shareholders to neutralise the impact of such item on cash distributions received by the shareholders. Non-recurring and one-off items such as loan establishment fees are considered examples of such expense items.

Conversely, in the event that an income item increases the Company's distributable income for any given fiscal period, the Company may, at the Company's discretion, choose not to distribute some of the distributable income but the Company does not expect distribution less than 90% of the distributable income for any fiscal period.

The Company's distribution policy will also be based on maintaining prudent reserves to ensure the Company remains solvent and that, among other things, the Company adequately provides for working capital costs. From time to time, the Company may retain distributions or proceeds from the realisation of investments to fund future investments. The declaration and payment of any future distribution will, in any case, be subject to the limitation that over-distribution of profits does not exceed the balance of the Company's NAV less a minimum NAV, on a non-consolidated basis, of KRW 5.0 billion.

The foregoing are statements of the Company's present distribution policy which may be subject to modification (including the reduction or non-declaration of any distributions) in the sole and absolute discretion of the Board of directors. The declaration of any future distributions will be subject to the decision of the Board of directors. The form, frequency and amount of future distributions (if any) on the Company's shares will depend on its earnings, financial position, results of operations, contractual restrictions, provisions of applicable law and other factors which the Company's Board of directors may deem relevant.

The Company will pay distributions in KRW. The Company may implement a stock distribution scheme. If the Company decides to proceed with the implementation of a stock distribution scheme, the proposal for the adoption of such scheme will be subject to approval from the Company's Board of directors. Such scheme, if adopted, will allow the shareholders to receive distributions in the form of new shares instead of in cash, and will enable the shareholders to acquire additional shares without having to incur transaction costs such as brokerage costs or stamp duty (if applicable). It is expected that any new shares issued pursuant to such scheme will be issued at the then prevailing prices at which the Company's shares are traded on the Korea Exchange, although the Company may issue such shares at a discount to prevailing prices subject to the approval of the Board of directors.

Unless otherwise provided by law, the Company may terminate the management agreement and the asset management company's appointment at any time with 90 days' written notice to the asset management company, following a resolution passed by holders representing a majority of the Company's issued shares.

The management agreement provides that the asset management company may terminate the management agreement at any time by notice in writing to the Company if the Company becomes insolvent or are terminated, if a receiver or administrative receiver or administrator or similar officer is appointed with respect to any of the Company's assets or if the Company commits any material breach of respective obligations under the management agreement and (if such breach is capable of remedy) the Company fails to make good such breach within 30 days of receipt of notice served by the asset management company to the Company requiring the Company to do so.

The management agreement permits the asset management company to resign and terminate the management agreement at any time with 90 days' written notice to the Company, and this right is not contingent upon the Company's finding a replacement asset management company. Where:

PR1 = the performance return for the period from the listing date to the current quarter end date.

B1 = the average of the daily closing accumulation index over the last 15 trading days of the quarter or in the case of the first quarter, the lesser of the last 15 trading days of the first quarter or the number of trading days from the listing date to the end of the first quarter inclusive, as calculated or reported by the Reporting Agency.

A “performance benchmark return” means the amount calculated as follows:

X = the lower of 3.0% and the annualized rate of inflation for the relevant period representing N1 (calculated as the compound annual rate of inflation based on the change in the CPI last published before the end date of N1 from the one published closest to the start date of N1).

N1 = the number of days from the listing date to the current quarter end date inclusive.

Under the terms of the management agreement, if the asset management company’s term as the Company’s corporate director expires and the asset management company is not re-elected as the Company’s corporate director by the Company’s shareholders in accordance with the Company’s AOI, the asset management company will continue to act as the asset management company until such time as a new asset management company is appointed and elected as the Company’s corporate director as required under the Company’s AOI.

As at 31 December 2024, the Company's total shareholders' equity, calculated by multiplying the NAV per share by the number of shares issued and outstanding as at that date, is KRW 3,414,203 million.
